8 DISCUSSION

9 Parties made their appearances. Counsel for Debtors stated that there are three (3)
10 objections to the Disclosure Statement: Metro (dkt. #1115), which was replied to (dkt. #1183);
11 the U.S. Trustee for Region 21 (dkt. #1133), which was replied to (dkt. #1191); and the UCC 12 (dkt. #1190).

13 With respect to the limited objection filed by the UCC (dkt. #1190), Counsel for Debtors
14 stated that they will address the inconsistencies between the Term Sheet and the Amended Plan
15 noted by the UCC and will provide further clarifications via a supplement to the Disclosure 16 Statement within fourteen (14) days.

17 With respect to the objection filed by Metro (dkt. #1115), which objects to the approval
18 of the Disclosure Statement for failure to disclose or account for potential liabilities that may be 19 imposed by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services for alleged overpayments, Counsel 20 for Debtors stated that such objection is related to a pending motion to compel (dkt. #1119), that 21 the Debtors and Metro will meet and confer to reach an agreement, and reserved their arguments
22 for confirmation or a later date. The court stated that the issue raised by Metro as to the Medicare 23 and Medicate payments would need to be solved but clarified that there was no complex legal 24 issue before it. The court inquired whether Metro would be withdrawing the motion to compel.
25 Counsel for Metro answered in the affirmative. A supplement to the Disclosure Statement will 26 be filed within fourteen (14) days.

27 With respect to the objection filed by the U.S. Trustee (dkt. #1133), the court stated that this is the first time it has considered third-party releases since the U.S. Supreme Court’s holding in Harrington v. Purdue Pharma L. P., 603 U.S. 204 (2024), that it is clear from that holding that

1 nonconsensual releases are barred and that consensual releases are permitted under certain 2 circumstances. Thus, the question is: how does one consent? Counsel for Debtors and the U.S.
3 Trustee argued their positions as per their filed briefs.

4 Attorney Guzmán argued that following Purdue Pharma, third-party releases are not 5 allowed and questioned whether parties are consenting to such releases by failing to opt-out.
6 Attorney Guzmán argued that to understand consent, we need to look to Commonwealth of 7 Puerto Rico law, specifically the Puerto Rico Civil Code which requires both a writing and 8 intent. For it to be understood that a person renounces their rights, their intention to renounce 9 them must be clear. Such waiver of rights must also be clear, conclusive, and unequivocal.
10 Attorney Guzmán argued that failure to fill and opt-out form, as is contemplated in the 11 Disclosure Statement and the proposed plan, does not meet any of these requirements.

12 The court inquired whether it was the U.S. Trustee's position that in Puerto Rico there 13 cannot be a consensual third-party release in a Chapter 11 plan under state law. Attorney 14 Guzmán answered that only an opt-in release would meet the requirements. Because creditors
15 would have to check a box to consent, that would constitute a writing. See Recording of January 16 21, 2025, Hearing, dkt. #1196, at 00:27:05-00:28:00. The court clarified that it was clear that 17 for there to be a request, such request must be clearly stated and with due notice. The court 18 inquired whether providing a party with a ballot that includes an option to opt-in or opt-out, and 19 their subsequent exercise of that option, complies with Commonwealth of Puerto Rico law.
20 Attorney Guzmán stated that failing to opt-out would not comply and that silence cannot be a 21 manifestation of consent, including failure to act when given the opportunity to do so. And, that 22 silence cannot be a manifestation of consent under both Commonwealth of Puerto Rico law and 23 basic common law (citing Restatement (Second) of Contracts). Attorney Guzmán further stated
24 that nothing in the Bankruptcy Code grants rights against third parties and that the releasers 25 contemplated seek exactly that.

26 The court stated that there are methods by which a third-party release may be obtained, 27 citing In re Smallhold, Inc., 2024 WL 4296938 (Bankr. D. Del. 2024), and stated that what must be determined is if the disclosures made in the ballots proposed meet those requirements.
Attorney Guzmán stated that the Debtors must comply with state law requirements and that only

1 an opt-in would meet those requirements. Counsel for Debtors stated that they do not agree with 2 the U.S. Trustee's position, which tries to eradicate opt-out procedures. Counsel for Debtors 3 conceded that there is conflicting case law, and argued that they cited caselaw that centers on the 4 importance of notice. They also argued that the procedures are clear and proper, i.e., the checking
5 of a box. Counsel for Debtors argued that they amended their earlier drafts by narrowing the 6 scope of the proposed releases, and that parties with counsel are able to confer with the same.
7 The narrowing of the scope, Counsel for Debtors argued, was made to address the U.S. Trustee's
8 original objection and those of creditors with a monetary interest. The court once more stated that 9 consensual releases are authorized, noted that the Debtors clarified that the opt-out provision will 10 only affect parties with counsel and that parties without counsel must affirmatively opt-in.
11 Counsel for Debtors agreed and stated that that is how the releases are drafted, although some 12 further clarifications must be made.

13 Attorney Guzmán then argued against the injunctions provided in the plan, noting that the 14 same does not establish a timetable and may be interpreted as a permanent injunction. Attorney
15 Guzmán also argued that the exculpations provided for in the plan should not include the secured 16 DIP Lender, the DIP Agent (Alter Domus), and other parties. He argued that the clause, as 17 drafted, extends beyond what should be allowed and thus should be limited. Counsel for Debtors 18 argued, and the court so noted, that such parties had taken an active participation in this case.

19 Counsel or Alter Domus, Attorney Zouairabani, made statements concerning the history
20 and outcome of exculpation and third-party release language approved by the U.S. District Court
21 for the District of Puerto Rico in various proceedings under Title III of the Puerto Rico Oversight
22 Management and Economic Stability Act ("PROMESA"), 48 U.S.C. §§ 2101-2241.<sup>2</sup>

23 Counsel for Debtors stated that they are willing to enhance notice and clarify language, 24 and meet with the U.S. Trustee if needed, depending on the instruction or ruling of the court.
25 The court stated for the record that if there is a legal question, it will address it, otherwise: it will 26 not advise the parties. Counsel for Debtors stated that they seek a legal ruling as to the structure

27 <sup>2</sup> The court notes the Motion to Clarify Statements Made During the Disclosure Statement Hearing (dkt. #1199) filed by Alter Domus on January 22, 2025.

1 and method proposed, for that will allow the Debtors to move forward. The court stated that if it
2 approves what Debtors have submitted, they will not need a ruling.

3 Counsel for Debtors informed the court that they are experiencing issues with straggler 4 claims and allowance of administrative expenses. Matters which may be before the court in the 5 future. They also stated that they must move on to confirmation.

6 With nothing further, court was adjourned and the matter continued without a date.

7 ORDER

8 The Debtors shall supplement the Disclosure Statement within fourteen (14) days from 9 the date of the hearing to address the matters raised by Metro and the UCC. Parties in interest are 10 granted fourteen (14) days thereafter to file objections to the approval of the amended Disclosure 11 Statement. If no timely opposition is filed, the amended Disclosure Statement may be approved.
12 The issue of third-party releases is taken under advisement.
